Monthly Insight Report

July 2026

Introduction

'The Internal Audit Network' (TIAN) comprises the seven NHS internal audit consortiums and in-house teams operating across England. These organisations collaborate across a number of areas to leverage their collective knowledge and expertise and drive efficiency and effectiveness. This monthly insight report produced by TIAN highlights key publications and is intended as a useful update and reference tool for our clients.

| Department of Health &amp; Social Care (DHSC) - Findings on post-death care and key actions required following the Fuller Inquiry and Nottingham maternity review | The DHSC has issued a letter to Trust and ICB senior leaders detailing the key actions required to strengthen post-death care following the Fuller Inquiry and recent Nottingham maternity review. The DHSC has provided supporting documentation which includes a board assurance statement which should be returned by Friday 31 July. https://www.england.nhs.uk/long-read/nottingham-maternity-review-findings-on-post-death-care-and-key-actions-required-following-the-fuller-inquiry/ For action by all NHS provider Trusts that have a mortuary, related storage area for the deceased, or routinely care for people after death                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| DHSC- NHS staff standards                                                                                                                                         | The 10 Year Health Plan committed to developing a new set of staff standards which will outline minimum standards for employment across a range of areas, aimed at improving staff experience. The standards set out the actions employers must take to deliver them and what staff can expect at work as a result. The documents published here bring together: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• An overview explaining why staff standards have been introduced, how they will be used and what each standard means in practice</li><li>• The full staff standards, setting out the detailed requirements for employers</li></ul> The staff standards focus on key areas that staff have told us matter most, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Line management</li><li>• Health and wellbeing</li><li>• Violence prevention and reduction</li><li>• Sexual safety</li><li>• Tackling racism</li><li>• Flexible working</li></ul> The standards have been developed by the DHSC and NHSE, working closely with employers and trade unions through the Social Partnership Forum, and are intended to be implemented locally through partnership working. The standards are for NHS staff, employers and leaders, and should be used alongside existing workforce policies and initiatives to support implementation. The standards will apply to secondary care, which includes acute, mental health, ambulance services and community healthcare. |

| NHS England (NHSE) - Minimum standards of patient experience - electives | NHSE has written to Trusts setting out the new minimum standards for planned patient care. The standards define clearly and simply the very minimum patients and carers should expect when they are referred to an elective pathway – including what they should expect at the time of referral, while they are on the waiting list and information about their appointments. The standards have been developed with patients, unpaid carers, patient representative organisations alongside clinicians and NHS teams. Trust Boards should assess their current performance against the outlined standards and set out how they will improve where they are not meeting a standard. Trust Boards are also expected to publish a statement in 2026/27 setting out their approach to complying with the minimum standards, followed by an annual statement reflecting their assessment of progress against them. https://www.england.nhs.uk/publication/minimum-standards-for-planned-patient-care/ For implementation by all NHS providers of elective care |
| NHSE - Service change guidance                                           | Updated guidance has been issued to support colleagues involved in designing and delivering substantial service change to navigate the reconfiguration process. It reflects powers for the Secretary of State to “call in” NHS reconfigurations, and the duty for NHS commissioning bodies to notify the Secretary of State about new substantial reconfigurations. https://www.england.nhs.uk/publication/planning-assuring-and-delivering-service-change-for-patients/ For information                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| NHSE - Preventing unlawful access to patient records                     | This letter asks Trust Boards to place a renewed focus on educating staff while also implementing a tough approach in response to those who breach patient trust in this way. The results are presented at GP practice, ICS, Primary Care Network, and national level. Results show that 76.7% of respondents said their overall experience of their GP practice was good (75.4% in 2025 and 73.9% in 2024). As well as the overall experience of their GP practice, respondents were asked about contact with their GP practice, confidence and trust in the health care professionals at their practice, whether their needs had been met at their last appointment and more. https://www.gp-patient.co.uk/ For information                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| National Maternity and Neonatal Investigation - Independent Investigation into Maternity and Neonatal Services in England: final report and recommendations | Baroness Amos (chair of this investigation) has found that the maternity and neonatal system in England is no longer fit to consistently deliver high-quality, compassionate care to every woman and family, and requires urgent reform to put safety at its centre, embed a focus on listening to women, and ensure anti-racist practice at every level. This report highlights key areas of concern, identifies barriers to delivering change and sets out a robust package of eight recommendations aimed at delivering long-term systemic and cultural transformation in maternity and neonatal care for the 21st century. The report also includes an additional set of actions that can be taken now, which will make a significant difference to the experience of women and families and the ability of staff to provide safe care. https://www.matneoinv.org.uk/final-reports/ For consideration by all NHS providers of maternity and neonatal services |

| Health Foundation - How efficiency varies across NHS acute trusts                   | This analysis examines how NHS efficiency has changed since the pandemic, the extent of variation across trusts and whether reducing that variation could provide a feasible route to improving efficiency nationally. Specifically, it considers whether the national decline in efficiency is being driven by a downward shift in efficiency levels across all trusts or a widening of variation between them. https://www.health.org.uk/reports-and-analysis/analysis/how-efficiency-varies-across-nhs-acute-trusts For information                                                                                                                                         |

| Faculty of Public Health - Growing up in an online world | This report suggests actions to protect the health and wellbeing of children and young people as they navigate the online world. The report is drawn from a formal response to the Department for Science, Innovation and Technology national consultation "Growing Up in the Online World". It considers the growing evidence that online platform design and content is negatively impacting the health of children and young people and becoming an increasingly severe public health issue. It highlights that many online platforms including social media networks are driven by commercial interests, and argues that conflicts between profits and safeguarding are often leading to insufficient safeguarding for children and young people. https://www.fph.org.uk/media/1jdoond3/fph_growinguponline_report-titled-3.pdf For information |
| Bite Back - Click-bait vs children's health              | At the turn of 2026, the government introduced new restrictions on junk food advertising online and on TV before 9pm to help protect children and young people. However, this report reveals that some of the UK's biggest food chains also reach young people through their own social media channels which don't fall under the regulations. The research analysed hundreds of posts from major food brands on TikTok and Instagram and uncovered how unhealthy products, viral trends, memes and youth-focused content dominate young people's social feeds and For You Pages. https://www.biteback2030.com/about/our-research/report-click-bait-vs-childrens-health/ For information                                                                                                                                                   |
| DHSC - DHSC counter-fraud strategy: 2026 to 2029         | This strategy sets out a co-ordinated programme of activity to tackle the underlying factors that enable fraud. It does this by: embedding counter-fraud by design across policies, processes and systems; identifying and understanding fraud risks through improved data and analysis; taking targeted, proportionate action to prevent, detect and disrupt fraud; and pursuing enforcement, sanctions and recovery where fraud occurs. It is structured around four priority areas which are prevention and detection, building our people and culture, whole system approach, and enforcement and recovery. https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/dhsc-counter-fraud-strategy-2026-to-2029 For information                                                                                                                           |

| HFMA Briefing: NHS Auditor Panels                        | In the NHS, the statutory auditor panel requirements apply to integrated care boards (ICBs) and NHS trusts, while foundation trusts currently have separate arrangements through their councils of governors. However, proposed reforms will bring foundation trusts closer to the arrangements used by NHS trusts and ICBs. In practice, auditor panel responsibilities are usually delivered through NHS audit committees, or a sub-group of the audit committee, rather than through a separate standalone panel. Auditor panels play a key role in supporting effective oversight and auditor independence. This means ensuring there is a robust appointment process, clear oversight of the auditor                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
